WORKSHOP ON NEWSPAPER STRATEGIES:
NEW PRODUCTS, DOMINANCE & CIRCULATION GROWTH
AUGUST 15-16, 1997, KUALA LUMPUR

EVALUATION REPORT

Fifty seven participants (57) from eight countries attended the two-day workshop. Majority came from circulation, advertising and sales departments of leading newspapers and magazines in the Asian region. Malaysia had the biggest delegation, about 75% of the total number of participants. Other countries represented included India, Indonesia, Hong Kong, Mauritius, Philippines, Singapore and Saudi Arabia. (see attached 1).

Speakers stressed the need to think strategically for newspapers to grow. This involves studying critically the market, including its preferences and lifestyles, the company’s core business and competition. Winning newspapers mostly from Europe were cited to highlight new products, new markets, and new strategies to meet stiff competition and improve bottomlines.

Results of their evaluation indicated that they were satisfied with the quality of the programme and organization of the workshop (see attached II). As suggested by participants, day two of the workshop had to be revised to incorporate topics such as positioning, branding and pricing.

Participants were critical of the lack of Asian focus in the speakers’ presentation. Lack of time to follow up concerns and issues, and interact with fellow participants was also a common concern. They also wanted more concrete techniques with an Asian context to strategize for the future.

On the workshop organization, some felt that a bigger room was necessary to accommodate the big number of participants. Others wanted a smaller group. There were suggestions for speakers to use powerpoint and colour slides. On the workshop programme, participants said the topics covered were far too many.

Topics suggested for future workshops included segmentation and readership profiling, growth strategies for circulation, skills training for writing and reporting, pricing and positioning techniques, and magazine designs, among others.

Strategies for Newspapers

Why is the market getting tougher?

- Shift in time span
  (in USA 10% decrease from 1990 to 1995)

- Decreasing circulation
  (France -2%, Ireland -27% from 1991 to 1995)

- Losing share of advertising spending
  (only different in Ireland)
Strategies for Newspapers

World trends in circulation

- Not valid for all markets
- Although some markets are still growing......
- Trends will be similar to all markets in the future
- Threats are less acute for developing markets
- Increase of population, improving literacy, economic growth
Financial Impact of Continued Development - example

within 5 years -5% circulation and -17% advertising revenue

LONG TERM BUSINESS PERSPECTIVE

"You have to invest to grow. The growth will then allow you to reinvest in the future – if you don’t invest now, you will die”
Publisher, Jyllands-Posten

"Short term profits are fine, but they distract us from what we are really trying to do”
General Manager, The Times

“We don’t have to live with demands on profit short term – we reinvest in the future because an increased market share will increase value long term”
President, Tribune Review

“We could make more profits – but we choose not to if it adversely affects the long term health of our company”
General Manager, Arkansas Democrat Gazette

Problem: Decreasing customer loyalty, decreasing readership

Project team: Two editors, one outside consultant

Market research: 1,300 interviews regarding content, quality, topics, layout, reading habits

Segmentation: According to attitude towards newspapers (enthusiasts vs. "hopeless cases") and according to topics (health, education, crime et.)

Layout: Re-vamped layout to increase readability and quick access to information

4.2 Magazine supplements

Example:  La Stampa (Italy)

Market test:  Creation of a four-page dummy issue, which was tested among readers and non-readers of La Stampa to get initial market feedback and estimate market potentials.

Distribution:  In combination with Sunday Issue

Content & graphic format:  Each issue deals with nine topics, aiming at targeted reader segments; inclusion of many photos up to poster size.

Advertising:  Magazine supplement contributed to higher circulation of the newspaper thus allowing to increase advertising rates.

Apart from weekly supplements consider niche publications appearing at irregular intervals:

- The new season
- Time out
- Back to school
- Local Business Directory
- Autumn Book Review
- Fashion news

- Step 2: Define customer  "Who will be our customer?"
- Step 3: Define product  "What does our customer want?"
- Step 4: SWOT  "Do we have the right skills?"
- Step 5: Acquire skills  "What help do we need?"
- Step 6: "Do it"  "We will succeed"
Positioning: How to do it

"The moment when we accepted that we must provide what the readers want was when we started to change."

(CEO, Independent Newspaper)
Positioning: How to do it

- Understanding what readers really want
- Understanding the different readers segments
- Companies work to understand their customers

- Today many newspapers think they are doing this while their efforts fall quite short

- Winning papers, gaining their position, are extremely sophisticated and live up to those activities in their every day work
- This is the difference between a newspaper and a well positioned winning newspaper
Positioning: Steps to take

- Market research of the Dallas Morning News

  - study readers and no-readers needs
  - defining relative performance
  - realisation Dallas Morning News is under performing
  - result = major reshape of paper
    hard news improvement
    local news expansion
    more business coverage
    more sports coverage
    ongoing market research

- Tribune Review

  - market research
  - survey expanding Pittsburgh market
  - identify shortcomings relative to competitor
  - act accordingly
Positioning: How to do it

Value Proposition

- Definition of value proposition
- A morning quality paper
- A morning popular
- A regional paper
- An international business paper
Positioning: How to do it

Define reader segments and identify needs

- Find that segments have unique profile
- Profiles also include topics between two segments

Branding

VG (Verdens Gang)

- Heavily spending promotional material logo all over Norway
- VG as much household name as Coca Cola
- Each year two / three advertising campaigns
- aim: give reader sense of security with the paper
- slogan: “Without VG it is not quite the same day”
- Half of all billboard capacity in Norway is leased
- Advertisement on taxi
- Logo: “Buy today’s VG” on petrol pumps
- Agreement for logo with all sport associations (Ski, football, handball, sailing, racing)
- In summer small teams travel to small towns handing out carnations
- (Road) shows for children
- Buying tickets for circus shows
- Opening media centre = interactive experience for young children
Branding

Building the brand

The following characteristics are building up the brand:

- history
- competence
- quality
- image
- reliability
- service
- prestige
- value-for-money
- authenticity
Price

Price is a tool to stimulate circulation depending on

- market's competitive situation
- different dynamics for single copy sales and subscriptions
- changing price (up or down) must be married with product improvements as "perceived by the reader"
- communication of price change is a must (more on reduction less on increases)
Balancing Price & Benefits

- use value map
- model 1: all three models on value equivalents
- clear, logical choice for any reader (high / high; low / low)

Perceived price

Perceived benefit
Gaining market share

- more benefit for same price
- equal benefit all lower price (value advantage position)
- lower benefit at equal price (value disadvantage position) = loss of market share

Perceived price

lose market share

gain market share

Perceived benefit
Successful moves in pricing "The Times"

- reducing price for single copy sales
- parallel: increasing benefit
- changing both parameters ==> increase market share
- results: stimulate and increase circulation ==> increase profit

!Graph showing perceived price and benefit

Successful moves in pricing "Dallas morning news"

- increase subscription price, without circulation damage
- introduction of balanced change, increasing price and benefit

Perceived price

Perceived benefit
Potentially unsuccessful strategy

- reducing price at equal benefit (market losen strategy)
- customers buy value, not "no-value"
- psychologically price down means value down

Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Management Consultants to Media, Printing, Packaging
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Although predominantly a newspaper - there are four possible courses of action

- Take advantage of our sales expertise in advertising sales to develop new products for national clients in the magazine field, e.g. driving standards agency. This generates revenue which would otherwise never arrive at our newspaper

- Boost circulation through special publications that capitalise on the widespread recognition of our newspaper brand

- Widen customer base through trade and consumer magazines

- Increase advertising revenues through special advertising reports and supplements

In addition: Branching out into new media i.e. audiotext, radio and cable TV, not the internet or online services
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Defining reader and advertising segments

- Get national advertisers with custom-publishing
- Expand customer base with local magazines
- Augment circulation with special publications
- Boost advertising revenue with special reports and supplements
- Get support from a profitable radio operation
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Get national advertisers with custom publishing

- Launch new titles
- Run them two or three times
- Create new appropriate division
- Generate magazines target brand advertisers who are absent from newspapers
- National association of home builders
- High potential, no risk magazine for a government ministry
- Drive On, from driving standards agency
- Offer information to attractive and interested audiences
- Get the revenue model right
- When task is done writing, distribution and printing are outsourced
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Expanding the customer base with local magazines

- What's on launch
- Working alongside institutions
- Conference and meeting planner
- Franchise inside communication
- Extending inside communication to consumer magazines
  - Buying in select magazine for suburban area on upgraded level
  - Make up three editions for cost sharing
  - 24,000 copies for population of 72,000

One writer for national stories. Eleven common pages of editorial, rest is local news
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Augmenting circulation with special publications

- New products to new readers or new products to current readers
- Design special publications, some associated with the newspapers
- Historical magazine, shows life as it was, 10’000 / 15’000 copies for US$1.7. Now about 20 issues so far
- Promotion through own newspapers, no promotion elsewhere
- Other publication “I remember”. The newspaper asking to submit memories and photos. Great reader interaction
- Additional historical series like the Vikings, the Romans also as teaching materials sold to schools (12’000 copies)
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Augmenting circulation with special publications

- Additional publishing of one off publications which relate to events like TV shows (Gladiators) or radio music power club
- Advertisers can buy thousands of extra copies with front page advertising to distribute to their customers
- Other one off publications are The Sixties, The Royal Family, My Husband
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

Boosting advertising revenue with special reports and supplements

- Publications of about 30 to 40 per year
- Business related subjects e.g. trade investment, regional inward investment, corporate finance, management buyout
- Support is critical to get
- Very close work relation with industry associations, chambers of commerce
- Four journalists working on the features, two additional journalists and two sub-editors
- A special report - success is measured in response from the market place
- There are also published client-led supplements
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

A profitable radio operation

- Repacking any news for radio which is available already
- Transmitting sharing with a large national radio network
- Hourly transmissions on local and regional topics
- Programmes also sent to Asian communities and youth through ISDN lines
- Bringing high quality to local cable TV
- From 460,000 homes 300,000 are cabled, 112,000 are subscribers
- Partnership with Mirror Group. They do live TV, the newspaper does local programme
- From 7.00 to 7.30 a.m. and from 6.00 to 6.30 p.m. reach 71% of available audience
Defining Reader and Advertising Segments

A profitable radio operation

- Big difference to radio. Costs are high. Fight against assumption that local TV is of poor quality.
- Access to news database is not used.
- Staff: Eight presenters plus crews, one news editor, one producer, several sales people.
THE NEW PAPER

First, a quick look back at how TNP was born.

Well, in Singapore nothing gets started without some prompting from him. Sometime in 1986, Mr Lee Kuan Yew gave a speech. In it he spoke about the need for an English language Shin Min Daily News. Shin Min is an evening newspaper which caters to the masses.

Top management huddled at Sentosa and ... to cut a long story short The New Paper was born.

[Flash TNP logo]

Its aim: to reach a group of Singaporeans who find The Straits Times too difficult to comprehend - both because of language and content. That was TNP's social objective.
The first issue appeared on July 26, 1938. And what a disaster it was.

[Flash first issue]

The readers and advertisers didn't like it. Circulation, which research showed would be 50,000, was a dismal 36,000.

Reasons for rejection:
1) Stories too short.
2) Stories not newsy.
3) It doesn't look like a newspaper.

In short, it was a paper they never expected. The design, the style of writing, the whole approach to news was unpalatable.

Circulation figures were embarrassing. Advertisers began to pull out. And costs, because of the recruitment of a number of American professionals, were high.
Enter executive Chairman Mr Lim Kim San. He looked at the figures and gave us an ultimatum: I give you six months. Show that you are making efforts to change the colour of the ink in your books or I'll close you down. This was about 6-8 months after we launched.

It served as a wake-up call. Many of the Americans left us. We did not replace the numbers. From a staff strength of 109, we came down to about 70. We chopped, we changed.

The paper became newsier. Circulation climbed to 50,000 to 70,000 to today's 115,000.

That in brief is the short, tortuous road to TNP's success.

Now, why has it become so successful?
No other afternoon tabloid has done as well as or better than TNP. The last experiment in the afternoon tabloid market, the Singapore Monitor, had a circulation of 40,000 plus. It had to fold up because it nearly bled the company to death.

The hurdles are stacked against an afternoon tabloid.

* A short shelf life.

* Heavy dependence on street sales. About 98%.

* The banyan tree called ST, which is a paper for everybody and goes offstone at 12.30 am. TNP offstones at 9.30 am. Between these hours the news file is very dry.

* Manpower. Getting talented and experienced journalists in a shrinking labour pool is difficult.

Then, why did TNP succeed?
I can divide it into two categories.

THE PRODUCT

1) Dare-to-be-different approach.

Give the example of American who asked: "You mean this is a Singapore paper?"

But there are dangers in this. Your people might go overboard. We have gone overboard on some occasions. Then, the reactions come - from readers, newsmakers. We use them as learning points.

Guiding philosophy: We must experiment. If not we won't know where the line is. Society is changing, government is changing. Newspapers will only know what the change is if they experiment.
2) CONNECTION WITH READER

Language, headlines, content have to connect with the reader.

[Flash: Bagus, Bluff Kiss and others which show different ways to tell a story.]

THE PEOPLE

The New Paper newsroom is organised very differently. There is no newsdesk. There is what we call a BigDesk.

[Flash visual of BigDesk]

Explain BigDesk concept.

a) Manpower squeeze;

b) Page One concept needed a BigDesk approach. They have to think Page One.

c) The little chiefs who run units which have no idea of what mainstream is doing.

CREATIVE LAB

[FLASH VISUAL]

This is the first thing you'll see when you enter the newsroom. The coffee machine and how hilarious messages are pasted on it. The so-called democracy wall. We allow staff to come up with ideas - The Wow! concept. The heavy hand of management is not seen.

[Read out Tien's letter.]

The Don Reeder example.

[Flash attitude page]

This was one of the highlights of TNP this year. The idea came from a supervisor, who bounced it off the editor, got Marketing department involved, and saw the project right through - with very little editor intervention or input.

Explain attitude page concept and how successful it is.
MULTI-TASKING

[Attach note to Neville]

THE CHALLENGES

a) Advertiser-friendly

[Show the paper we produced for Marketing presentation.]

Key point: no compromise to editorial integrity.

Result: Advertisers knocking on our door.

b) Finally, editor as GM.
