From Users perspective soft skill are needed!
In preparing for MSC, employees must develop new sets of skills. In western countries, two types of training: technical and soft skills.

- a) information navigation
- b) analysis and conceptual design of global services
- c) synthesis
- d) evaluation and repackaging of services

Employees should enroll in specialized workshops:

- Navigation & Evaluation of Internet Services (newspaper, manufacturing, international relations)
- Using Internet - Intranet services to Monitor Trends & Technology
- Conceptual Design of Interactive Web sites
Themes from Digital Economy (Tapscott)

- knowledge economy
- digital economy
- virtualization
- integration - networking
- disintermediation
- convergence
- gap between consumer & producer blurs
- globalisation
- immediacy

Use WSJ Interactive - as an example of themes

How one can blend traditional & digital services & enhance customer service

Using Internet, employees can analyze how other organizations handle integration of traditional & digital services. Employees may identify opportunities for adapting approaches to in-house assignment.
Other ways of communicating with clients, customers, partners, etc.

Communications tools such as newsgroups, email and listservs (electronic discussion) are available. From southeast Asia, limited number of newsgroups & listservs. Newsgroups - give you access to what "the man on the street" is saying.
World Wide Web (WWW) sites

Jump pages
provide hypertext links to related pages not a part of the same family pages

Gateway pages
describe content of subordinate pages & serves as "table of contents" function

Content pages
contain actual textual, numeric, graphic, audio or visual data

---

Ex: Asian newspaper web sites

- Content pages - Singapore Press Holdings (SPH) Asia One (Straits Times Interactive, etc.), South China Morning Post, The Star Online, Bangkok Post
- Gateway pages - The Star Online (Malaysia) site map, SCMP Index
- Jump pages - some Asian newspaper sites do not provide jumps to pages outside of their web site. Some of AsiaOne papers - provide jumps to corporate web sites.
Factors to Consider - Current Staff

Employes should be able to identify

- new ways of sharing & designing services (ex: value-added newspaper web sites)
- other ways of communicating with clients & partners (email, newsgroups)
- how organization can blend traditional & digital services
- creativity in enhancing customer & support services

New ways of sharing & designing services

Using Internet, employees can navigate, identify & analyze services provided by other companies including the competition. Where possible, adapt some relevant services to local environment.
