WELCOME ADDRESS

BY

CHAIRMAN OF THE SEMINAR,
LT GEN MUJIB UR RAHMAN KHAN

28 MARCH, 1983

The Minister for Information and Broadcasting, Government of Pakistan
Secretary of the AMIC
Foreign and Pakistani delegates
Excellencies,
Ladies and Gentlemen,

It gives me great pleasure to extend a very warm and cordial welcome to you all, and particularly to the foreign delegates, who have come to Islamabad for the Seminar on "Mass Media:, Tradition and Change".

We are glad to have been able to organise this Seminar in coordination with the Asian Mass Communication and Information Centre, Singapore (AMIC). We are happy to have among us the Secretary-General of the AMIC, Mr. Vijay Menon and Mr. Mustapha Masmoudi, Adviser to the Prime Minister

...of Tunisia.
of Tunisia.

This Seminar proceeds from our awareness, of the vital role of modern Mass Media, in initiating and coping with the phenomenon of change, over the entire spectrum of a nation’s life. This includes, identifying the objectives, their validity in mobilising popular will, awareness of the problems that surface in the wake of change, and suggest ways for their solution.

But care has to be taken against unproductive or retrogressive change in order to maintain core values of a society, through every stage of change, and participation in universal progress without loss of individual identity.

Within the frame-work of these basic issues, the specific objectives of this Seminar are:-

first To share with the other participants each country’s experience of the nature, extent and dynamics of the interaction of tradition and change, within their own society.

secondly To share with the other participants ... each country’s each country's perception of the role of its Mass Media in both initiating and coping with change, the specific problems faced and the manner of their resolution; and thirdly From the exchange of views, to arrive at a clearer understanding of what is universal and what is particular (in our regional and individual context), so that each country may evolve a more effective response in its media operations to our common problem of tradition and change.

Operational constraints of the Seminar compel us to restrict attendance during the working sessions to: the country delegates, the specified observers and members of the press corps covering the proceedings of the Seminar.

We plan to publish a book on the papers which are to be presented, discussed and formally placed on record of the ... Seminar. I hope Seminar. I hope our effort will receive an abundant upsurge of creative participation from foreign countries and Pakistani intellectuals.

I am also confident that the Seminar will be able to give a fresh look to the conceptual philosophy of Mass Media and motivative factors of tradition and change, so that each country may evolve a more effective response to the common problem of tradition and change in its media operations.

Beside its traditional methods of informing, entertaining and educating the masses, media in Pakistan are reshaping their role and responding to the latest technological developments. It is obvious that this change upward will enrich socio-cultural life of the country.

This communication growth in the near future, will not only experience the most developed information society; but will also be vulnerable to the pernicious onslaught of alien political ideologies, cultural mores and commercial pressures through advertising. This will put us in a situation where self-preservation

...and separate identity
and separate identity may become increasingly more difficult.

In order to cope with this situation it may be appropriate to consider if a code of conduct is necessary regarding the use of the flow of information across national borders. Our common efforts should, therefore, aim at identifying many possibilities inherent in this situation and consider sharing experiences with other countries rather than blindly import alien ideologies to the detriment of the future generation.

I thank your excellencies, ladies and gentlemen once again for honouring us with your presence here. I wish the Seminar all success in its deliberations.

I now conclude my presentation and request the Secretary-General of the AMIC, Mr. Vijay Menon, to say a few words, before the inaugural address by our Minister for Information and Broadcasting.
